Omni I, Omni II reopen after roof collapse

➤ No cause yet released for roof collapse

Courtney Whalen
Western Review

Things in Omni I and Omni II are back to normal this week after a roof collapse over the curling sheets closed the entire facility last weekend.

Structural engineers gave the all clear for the two ice rinks and fitness centre for Monday morning. The curling club lounge and MacKenzie Conference Centre remained closed until clean up from damage caused by the Jan. 24 roof collapse can be completed.

Curlers had not yet started arriving for the Drayton Valley Curling Club's Mixed Bonspiel when a portion of the building's roof came crashing in on Jan. 24.

Slated to kick off Friday evening the event, and all others at the Drayton Valley Omniplex and MacKenzie Conference Centre (MCC), were abruptly cancelled after emergency services were called to the multi-use facility around 1 p.m.

Responding to reports of a roof collapse at the Omniplex Fire Chief Tom Thomson said when crews arrived on scene they immediately made sure the building was being completely evacuated while they located the damage.

"The No. 1 priority is life safety," he said, noting Omniplex staff had already started evacuating those in the building.

Firefighters then uncovered the source of the call, a portion of the roof above the curling sheets in Omni III had collapsed. Crews also discovered a significant water leak as a result of the collapse as well as a gas leak. While crews worked to get the water shut off the utilities were called and arrived to shut off the source of the gas leak and power to the building.

Omniplex employee Tony Swendsen was in the area just prior to the roof collapsing.

"I was downstairs in the curling rink viewing area and I had heard a couple of big bangs, so I went upstairs into the lounge and the roof was still intact at that moment," he said. "I walked back into the main lobby and that's when the alarm went off and that's when the roof collapsed, so I went back into the curling lounge and you could see the curling rink ice surface was where it completely collapsed."

Although there were users in other parts of the facility who were evacuated the curling rink was still empty ahead of the bonspiel.

"Within the next few hours that would have been full of people," he said of the area where the collapse occurred.

Standing outside the Omniplex Friday evening Mayor Glenn McLean said when he was informed of the collapse his first concern was for the safety of anyone who might have been in the curling rink. When it was determined no one was injured he next wanted to know the extent of the damage and how quickly parts of the facility could safely reopen to the public.

"I think we all know this is a well-used facility," he said.

As of Sunday evening no official cause for the collapse of around 1/3 of the Omni III roof had been released.

Aside from the roof, the subsequent water leak caused significant damage to the Derrick Rink and portions of the MacKenzie Conference Centre. On Saturday McLean said there was between two and three inches of water in the boxing club, which will now require a new subfloor and mat.

RCMP investigation into shooting continues

► No arrest yet in shooting on Jan. 19 that sent man to hospital

Courtney Whalen
Western Review

Police continue to investigate the circumstances around a shooting that took place in Drayton Valley on Jan. 19.

RCMP received calls about shots being fired at a residence in the early morning hours of Jan. 19. When they arrived they found a 41-year-old man had been shot. Last Wednesday (Jan. 23) McLean said the man was conscious and in stable condition, but police weren't releasing much more information about the ongoing investigation.

McDermott did say that at this point police don't believe last week's shooting has any connection to an incident last November when shots were fired in a residential neighborhood in town.

When Mayor Glenn McLean was informed about the shooting his thoughts went where most people's would.

"Whenever there's a shooting of course your immediate thoughts go to safety." After speaking with an MP, who he said was keeping him briefed on the progress of the investigation, McLean is satisfied that the shooting seems to be an isolated incident.

“A one-off incident is unfortunate, but it's not Drayton Valley. It's not who we are.”

— Mayor Glenn McLean

"I'm confident that they're doing everything they can to apprehend the suspect," he said. News of the shooting garnered a lot of reaction on the Drayton Valley Western Review Facebook page, both from those dismayed about the violence in the community and those who tried to put it in perspective.

One of those was Brendan Brisebois. "You know what? I DO love this town. I've lived here all my life and it's a great place. It's not hard to find worse communities to live in. I've grown up with a lot of people in Drayton Valley and the surrounding (area) and I feel a lot safer raising my family here when compared to places like Edmonton, Red Deer or Calgary. Yes, unfortunately bad things happen here, and I guarantee it's a lot more than you hear about in the news, but you can't let a small handful of people with their own problems be a basis for the reputation of the entire town," he posted.

McLean is of the same mind. He points to the thousands of people who call Drayton Valley home, who get involved in the community and raise their families here.

"These are the people we need to remember," he said. "A one off incident is unfortunate, but it's not Drayton Valley," he continued. "It's not who we are."

The Drayton Valley RCMP are being assisted in the investigation by the Drayton Valley and Edmonton General Investigation Sections as well as the Edmonton Forensic Identification Section.

Local chapter of Women's Institute folds

➤ In its close to 60 years organization spearheaded many initiatives in area

Lesley Allan
Western Review

Dec. 31 didn't only mark the end of 2013, it also marked the end of an era as the Women's Institute (WI) closed its Drayton Valley chapter after nearly 60 years of service.

Starting up in 1954, the volunteer organization played a vital role in how the community of Drayton Valley developed, not only through its work helping those in need, but also through activities to bring services to the area and set social standards.

"It's played a major role because it sought women's issues, it helped in ways with social services before social services were there, it started the library. It started a fair that was a precursor to the Agricultural Fair, and it got women a public washroom. Isn't that amazing that in Drayton Valley there wasn't one in the 1960s?" says Karen Sack, former president of Drayton Valley WI. "These are major things and lots of things that made a significant difference in Drayton Valley." From lobbying to bring an ambulance to the area, to supporting Basics for Babies, women's shelters, animal shelters, and community gardens, the organization has had a strong commitment to improving the community they call home and ensuring that it could be the best that it is.

"I think that's just major," says Sack as to why the group felt it was important to make such a difference throughout the area. "That's your community and you want to see it flourish and succeed, you want to see women flourish and succeed, and in those instances there are wonderful things that you can do."

With 15 members in 2013, over the last three years the group has given 1,500 hours of their time to volunteering within the community. Although the group has a passion for the work they've done over the years, an average age of 60 years old for its members has proven to be too much of a challenge for the group.

"It was difficult for some people because they spent their lives in it," shares Sack on the decision to end the WI. "On the other hand they know that with the age and the health concerns that are present that it was a conclusion that had to be made. Its time had come, and if it didn't come now it would come in a year or two years."

With the motto "For Home and Country" it's clear that the group had the sense of community and heart. According to Sack they appreciate all the support residents and businesses have given to them over the years and she hopes that going into the future the community will remember what the group has done and the difference that they have made.

"I think the people involved would like their contributions remembered, because they were major contributions, and a lot of work was put into it. So when you close something you don't exactly want to be forgotten, you want to be remembered for the significant things that you did."

Curling community steps up

Work on that clean up started Saturday and will continue into this week. In some places it appears that drywall will need to be removed and water damage to the buffet area and back bathrooms of the M.C. will require the replacement of wallpaper once the area is dried out. It's anticipated that some of the baseboards in portions of the M.C. will also need to be removed.

On Sunday, members of the boxing club, curling club and seniors fitness were permitted to clean out storage areas to allow the cleaning company better access.

The collapse of the roof has ended curling at the Drayton Valley club just as its bonspiel season was heating up, but Drayton Valley Curling Club President Mike Landry's main concern when he found out about the collapse was that no one was hurt. He was already out of town for another curling bonspiel when he got word. Assured of everyone's safety, the club will now have to look ahead.

"For us, it has now turned to kind of the necessary process," he said. The Drayton Valley Curling Club is a busy facility with league play and bonspiels. The club also houses a significant investment in equipment. Last Saturday Landry said the club would need to assess damage to those items when they were able to access the building.

As word about the roof collapse spread offers of ice time in different communities started to come in. "There's been a huge outpouring," he said. "That's kind of characteristic of the curling community."

Last weekend curling facilities in Breton, Otonabee and Seba Beach, among others had offered a venue for some of the club's upcoming events. Landry said the curling club will have to meet this week to see what to do about the remainder of this year.

It appears that Sliders Lounge will be able to reopen once clean up is complete. As for the curling rink itself, that will be a longer process. Last Friday McLean said the town would need to wait for word from the adjusters before looking at what the options are.

The curling club too will be talking about what the next steps are. "We'll just take it in stride and work with the town," said Landry.

LOCALS SCAMMED

A local couple who thought they were helping a grandson in trouble realized they had been the victims of a phone scam.

On Jan. 15 the residents received a phone call from a person pretending to be their grandson. The caller told his 'grandparents' that he had been in a collision and needed help. A supposed legal adviser then came on the phone and said if money was sent to the Dominican Republic to cover the cost of the damage the 'grandson' would be free to go.

The seniors sent more than $7,000 via moneygram to the Dominican Republic, believing they were helping their grandson.

It was only the following weekend when they were able to get in touch with their actual grandson that they realized they had been the victims of a scam. The scam was subsequently reported to police.

RCMP are reminding residents not to send money to anyone until verifying the request for money is legitimate.

LOCK IT OR LOSE IT

People who forget or neglect to lock their doors are making themselves easier targets for thieves.

Last week Drayton Valley RCMP had 12 reports of thefts from vehicles. Cst. Andrew Grainger said that in the majority of the cases the vehicle doors had been left unlocked.

"Which seems to be a very common thing," he noted.

Many of the most recent reports came in from vehicles that were parked at local hotels.

Making sure to lock up when exiting your vehicle is the easiest way to deter thieves who may go around simply testing door handles to see which vehicles they can get easy access to.

BUSINESSES BROKEN INTO

A number of local businesses were broken into last week.

Culprits gained entry to the building currently housing Cobblestone Café and a number of other businesses and rummaged through the building and stole a small quantity of cash. Police also received reports that Tattered Pages and Sign O Rama had been victims of break ins.

COLLISION RESULTS IN CHARGE

A 20-year-old man has been charged with impaired driving after a collision on Jan. 17. The man struck a pole in Drayton Valley. He was taken to hospital, where he was subsequently released and then arrested and charged by police.

Time for less talk and more action on tourism plan

Approximately 18 months ago the Town of Drayton Valley and Brazeau County decided to take a serious look at a regional tourism plan.

Consultants were hired, input was collected from stakeholders and the municipalities and a draft plan and regional brand were developed and presented. While there was some concern over the proposed branding, those around the council table at the time gave consensus that the plan itself had a lot of potential.

That was last summer and since then not much has happened. The election brought new faces to both councils, but many who had been involved in the discussion from the beginning were re-elected.

Last week tourism was once again on the agenda. After a closed door session between the two councils stakeholders were invited to share their thoughts.

The Brazeau County council chamber was close to full with those who have an interest in seeing tourism in the area grow from private businesses and existing tourism operators to service clubs and interest groups. Although willing to offer their input, much of what the stakeholders had to say was repetition of what they've been saying for the past year. There have been clear about what they'd like to see for tourism all along.

What is less clear is what the councils are thinking.

At the conclusion of the meeting Rose Lussman, a member of local business association, noted that it's time to see what's been discussed actually put in motion. Coun. Nicole Nadeau then posed a question to the stakeholders in attendance, asking them what they were going to do to keep the process moving forward and get others involved.

Councils would be better to answer that question themselves.

Aside from a vague mention of a tourism framework there was no sharing of how the municipalities plan to proceed. Copies of the tourism plan, which to this point hasn't been officially adopted, were available but not even referenced in the meeting. Since no one other than councilors and administration were privy to any of the past discussion that took place earlier that afternoon, stakeholders and the public remain in the dark about how the towns and county see tourism moving forward, and to what degree they're interested in investing in it.

Private enterprise and local recreation groups certainly have an important role to play in any growth in tourism, but it's difficult for them to proceed in any meaningful way until they know how the municipalities plan to be involved.

Investing in tourism is not a step that should be taken lightly. The costs could be significant, so could the returns. After 18 months we should be past the basic question of what tourism is. Input is good. New ideas are good. Discussion is good although it's better when everyone can know what that discussion entails. However, it can be tedious.

It's time for both municipalities to make a decision about what they want to see in tourism, and to see what's

Up, up and away

Some days this job is pretty awesome. It gives you the opportunity to try things you normally wouldn't. Last Saturday was one of those days.

I found myself heading out to the Drayton Valley Municipal Airport to check out the Drayton Valley Flying Club's open house. The club is in the process of raising its profile, even bringing a flight school course to the area next month. I didn't know what to expect when I got there, but was happy to discover they had already had lots of people in attendance and were welcoming a number of pilots from other areas who were coming to show their support.

When I arrived it was decided that I should take a flight to get a sense of what it's all about and gain a spectacular view of the area. I haven't been in a small plane in more than 15 years, and that time was only for a very short period of time. I was pretty excited that pilot Darcy Erickson agreed to take me up in his Cessna 182.

When all was ready I climbed into the plane, along with a father and daughter who were also coming along for the flight, put on the headphones and waved off the barf bag — I'm not known for getting motion sickness.

It was quite windy on Saturday

There and Back

as between I found myself immensely grateful I'd skipped breakfast that morning and was continuing on breakfast in a way I hoped would prevent me from vomiting all over the console.

We made it back to the busy airport while my mind was still in control over my stomach. Back on solid ground I thanked Darcy and made a rather hasty exit to my car, trying to hide the fact that my tailbone body didn't share my enthusiasm for new and exciting experiences.

I'll spare you the incredible details, but once I made it back to the office my stomach finally was the baffle over my iron control. All in all I was quite disgusted with myself. Here I was doing something completely cool and I blew it. Luckily I was able to appreciate the fabulous perspective for a portion of my flight, because I have a feeling that might be my last trip in a plane of that size.

However, for those of you with a stronger constitution than mine, I encourage you to check out the flying club. Last Saturday the members I met were extremely knowledgeable, very welcoming and excited to share their passion for aviation. Be sure to check them out on Facebook at Drayton Valley Flying Club.

Darcy was sharing lots of interesting facts with us, which proved a good distraction, but in the pas-

Out of my control

From the Rec Desk
Kerry Doran

I grew up a bit this week. I learned it is important to only control things that are in my control. As I tell you this story, I make reference to burning a dog, this is only a metaphor for situations that I have experienced without telling you my life story. No real animals were harmed.

I felt like I was trying to control a virtual mad dog this week. Work seemed to be chaotic and as I was trying to get old work finished while starting new projects. It was one thing after another, and when I thought one item was completed, the door opened on two more problems. So needless to say that I was unable to pin the dog down without getting bitten by its sharp teeth. By the end of the week I really wanted to beat that rabid dog into submission!

I am a self-proclaimed control freak. I used to go about wound up like a spring, worried that if I let things go I would eventually suffer the negative consequences of doing so. I had to learn quickly that in order to handle the situation the best, I had to let all of the dog go, even out on a leash, allowing myself to be safe and secure, and let the dog choke itself a bit.

We can't control the rotation of the Earth, or other people, what they think of us, or even if they really like us. We can't control if someone will stay with us or leave us, or if they will do what we ask of them. We can't control whether or not people will say good things about us for every step we take.

Rather than focusing on the negative, we need to realize the things that we can control, to give insight on how we can live in a more relaxed lifestyle. The more we focus on what we can control and let go of the rest, the more power we have.

We can control whether we offer good service or not, and if our own needs are met or not. We can open up the possibilities of our self-worth, and to choose to not sell ourselves short. We can choose who we hang out with in social settings. We can control how involved we need to be in any given situation. We can control what we eat and how much.

By accepting that we can't change some things, we become more powerful in changing the things that we do have control over. If we are able to follow this simple rule, we can free ourselves from the negative thoughts and emotions that can prevent our happiness. Believe me, it hurts to let things go that you are passionate about. Challenges present themselves at the most inopportune times, and it takes strength just to let the dog choke itself out.

I am still a "control freak" but I am a work in progress, and I don't feel too bad allowing the virtual dog to hang itself from time to time.

— Kerry Doran is the Recreation Activity Co-ordinator for the Town of Drayton Valley.

Around the water cooler...

How did we get to the end of January? The year is already going by so quickly. The respite from the harsh winter was very welcome last weekend and recharged us to head into February!

We've got some pretty important birthdays when it comes along this month. Family and friends of Melanie Hall wanted to be sure this milestone didn't pass unnoticed.

Melanie celebrated the big 4-0 on Jan. 27. Hope your day was filled with birthday wishes and cake Melanie!

We also have birthday wishes for not one, but TWO of our favourite imports to Drayton Valley. First up we want to send birthday love to Alex Dipasquale who celebrates on Feb. 1. We'll tell you what, brs, we sure are happy you decided to move to Drayton Valley! We'll also be happy to help you eat some cake and ice cream (hint hint).

Then, on Feb. 3, Sabine Larcher blows out her candles. Alles Gute zum Geburtstag to you! We really hope that means happy birthday and isn't comparing you to a chicken or something! Either way, enjoy your day.

The Drayton Valley Flying Club held a successful open house at the Drayton Valley Municipal Airport on Jan. 25. Area projects receive big boost

Lightstream Resources Ltd. invests half a million dollars into area projects

Lesley Allan
Western Review

When establishing offices and operations throughout the Drayton Valley and Bonanza County area many oil companies find it important to give back to the communities they come in to call home.

For Lightstream Resources 2014 is starting off in a big way as it commits to investing a total of $500,000 into two area projects that will continue to help the community grow.

"We want to reinvest in the community that we operate in to make it a better place for all of us who work, live and play in," shares Lyndin Muth, area manager of Alberta and B.C. for Lightstream Resources Ltd. "It's that simple."

With funding being spread out over a timeframe of several years, the Calgary based company discovered the two projects it will support through the Community Investment Plan (CIP), which was developed through the joint efforts of Bonanza County and the Town of Drayton Valley.

In September, the CIP gave the opportunity for five local projects to present to industry representatives the goals and benefits of their initiatives. Muth, on behalf of Lightstream, was present at the meeting, as were the recipients of the funding: the Aquatic Facility and the Breton Community Centre.

"The impressive part to me personally was the fact that they presented together and they didn't try to upstage or outperform anybody," says Muth of the presentations that had all projects speak one after another. "It was just there are our collective needs, anything you can do to help one or all of us is appreciated." Doing it all at once rather than coming one at a time, I think just kind of set the stage for showing there's a bunch of different needs, some that may be more important for us than others."

"It was a very unique approach and just the co-operation between the different organizations was commendable," he added.

Presenters also felt the meeting was beneficial and helped them get further ahead with finding sponsorship than they might have done on their own.

"The events itself and how it was organized back in September was a wonderful opportunity for everybody to be there and talk and mingle," shares Brandy Fredrickson, newly appointed president of the Aquatic Facility Development Committee. "It was a really low stress environment where you could talk to everybody and give a litle bit of information about your project, but also the Community Investment Plan gave us the opportunity to have that audience."

"As a committee we may have gotten an audience somewhat like that (on our own), but definitely not in the volume we had with that Community Investment Plan presentation," she adds.

With investors having the basics of what each project could do, Lightstream then avoided representatives from both the Aquatic Facility and Breton Community Centre to Calgary to further discuss the initiatives and to learn more about the area. From there, Lightstream's Corporate Donation Committee made their final decisions and informed the committees of their support.

"It's greatly appreciated that they are helping us in our community to be able to make our next step forward into getting our building put up," shares Darren Scott, chairman of the Breton Community Centre fundraising committee, noting that the final details of their agreement with Lightstream are still being worked out.

"I think it will make a huge impact to basically say in a large announcement that this (the aquatic facility) is something that our community truly wants and it is something that is going to happen," says Fredrickson.

"We're absolutely thrilled, I don't know how to say it without sounding prosaic, but just thinking Lightstream basically for taking the opportunity and the time to let us present to them," she continues. "I think it's huge for our community, but also the Breton community. It's awesome."

The amounts of the two donations vary, with the Breton Community Centre set to receive $200,000 to go toward their project, which is estimated to cost approximately $4.8 million and will replace a facility that has aged greatly over the last 52 years.

"They had an impressive track record of the number of uses for that facility that has obviously more than outlived its purpose, having been renovated with the amount of problems it currently has," shares Muth about why the Breton Community Centre was a good decision. "The amount of volunteer horsepower that they want to infuse into making it happen is impressive. It's very much a community project, there's a lot of buy in."

The Aquatic Facility project will receive a total of $300,000 over a two-year span with $150,000 being given in 2015 and an additional $150,000 in 2016.

"It was just the impact for not just Drayton Valley residents, but anybody in the county, or anybody around," says Muth about the decision to donate. "I've talked to so many people who have taken their families to a Tri-Leisure in Spruce Grove or Stony Plain for a Saturday when they winter blazes hit, this facility can provide that (locally)."

Faced to see how these two facilities will impact the community he calls home, Muth says that being part of a company that shows support like this is very important to him.

"I've lived in Drayton for 35 years and has donated in a major way to these areas when they come around," he explains. "I said I'd like to retire knowing that one of them did."

"I'm very proud to be a Lightstream employee," he adds.

Lightstream also recently made a $50,000 to Rotary House.

Camping out to provide shelter and hope for those who have lost everything

Drayton Valley Interact raises funds for ShelterBox support

Lesley Allan
Western Review

It may be winter, but area youth will be setting up camp in the local wilderness in order to provide those devastated by Typhoon Haiyan with a shelter to live in while they rebuild their lives.

The initiative is part of the Drayton Valley Interact Club's goal of helping those in need, not just at a local level but internationally as well. It will see the youth group fundraising by spending 24 hours with the supplies that would be available in what the funds collected will be used to purchase.

"It's not like we're doing something as simple as going to an old folks home and singing cards, we're not volunteering like that," explains Grade 12 Frank Maddock High School student and Interact Club member, Emily Alger. "We're actually going out there and we're putting ourselves in the ShelterBox conditions somebody else would be experiencing."

Responding to disasters around the world, ShelterBox provides emergency shelter and lifesaving supplies that people need to survive following a disaster, like that seen in the Philippines following a typhoon in November that still has millions of people living in dire circumstances.

"So far, as of right now, one million ShelterBoxes are required and $50,000 have been purchased, so we're a long ways away (from what's needed)," says Lesley Allan, new generations chair with the Drayton Valley Rotary Club and one of the leaders for the Interact Club. "Consider how long ago that devastation has been and people are literally taking palm trees and making covered shelters as their home."

that's how extreme it is over there right now."

A typical ShelterBox contains a family tent, blankets, water purification system, cooking utensils, a stove, a tool kit, a children's activity pack and other vital items, which are handed out by highly trained ShelterBox Response Team volunteers who work with other international organizations and local partners.

"We're actually going out there and we're putting ourselves in the ShelterBox condition somebody else would be experiencing"

— Emily Alger
Drayton Valley Interact Club

At $1,200 a ShelterBox, the Interact Club explains that with dollar for dollar going to the cause of providing shelter for those in need, the decision to support the organization was an easy one.

"It's more of a direct cause," shares Colton Chamberlain, another Gr. 12 FMHS student in the youth organization. "So you're really doing something."

"This is actually helping really devastated families," he adds.

"They are meant for someone to live in for three months, but in the long run somebody will probably end up living in there for quite some time," says Alger. "So really it does make a big difference."

Just in the beginning stages of their fundraising efforts, the youth group has already been able to garner enough support to purchase three ShelterBoxes for the Philippines.

Ultimately their goal is to provide 10 shelters for those in need, but enthusiastically the group hopes to go much further than that.

"It makes me really hope that we can surpass our goal," shares Alger. "It would be a wonderful feeling knowing that we were able to raise more than 10 ShelterBoxes at $1,200 a piece. It puts faith in our community that they can band together for something like this."

Those interested in helping them reach and surpass their goal of purchasing 10 ShelterBoxes can do so ahead of time, but the group also hopes that people will take the time to join them near the Pembina Nordic Ski Club chalet when the begin their camp out.

"I encourage people to come out and see what's going on and get to know the high school kids that are not doing this," says Kathryn Regnier, Interact Club leader. "It's a big thing that they're doing and it would be good for them to see not only the financial support but also to have that partnership with them and the feeling that they're being supported by the community."

Taking place Feb. 6 starting at 10 a.m., students and leaders taking part in the fund-raising effort will be spending 24 hours out in the wilderness where they will sleep in snow caves (weather permitting, warm temperatures are working against this concept), eat stew made over campfire, as well as doing various winter activities.

Also disconnecting for the weekend, all those taking part will be required to leave cell phones and other technologies at home so that they get a true sense of what it is to not have a home.

"I'm actually really excited. I think it will be fun," shares Chamberlain, adding that he really hopes people take the time to join them.

"I think if they see it's more real. You can hear lots of hearsay, like 'oh you they're going to do that' but if you go out you'll see what's actually happening and might make them see it differently."

"I think it will be different," says Alger. "It's a little out of our comfort zone because we've never done anything like this, but it will be fun and a new experience."

With participants excited, but nervous, about the camp out and what it will be like, those who are helping the youth reach their goals knows that the project won't just help those who receive the ShelterBox, but the whole process is impacting the way these youth look at the world, as well as the skills they have.

"This project is more than just raising money for the Philippines, this project has allowed some of these students to find strength within themselves that they never knew was there," shares Saunier. "This is allowing the kids to really step out of their comfort zone and not only think about themselves but to something they wouldn't normally do."

"This is actually helping really devastated families."

Thunder battle for playoff spot

Thunder win against Grande Prairie as the two continue to vie for last playoff spot in North

Western Review Staff

The Drayton Valley Thunder earned an important victory last week before the Omplex was closed last weekend due to the collapse of a portion of the curling club's roof.

The Jan. 25 game between the Thunder and the Fort McMurray Oil Barons was cancelled by the AHRU after the town of Drayton Valley cancelled all events at the Omplex until the facility was given the OK by structural engineers.

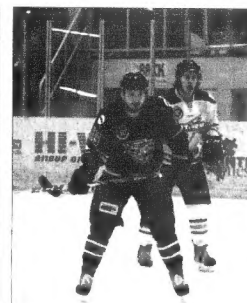

However, earlier in the week, on Jan. 22, the Thunder welcomed the Grande Prairie Storm to the Omplex. The two teams are battling it out in the North Division standings for the final playoff spot.

The Thunder picked up two points with a 3-2 win over the storm. Although the Storm were on the board first, Brett Smythe took advantage of a power play to tie it. Grande Prairie made good on its own power play to again take the lead heading into the second period. From there it was all Drayton Valley as Trevor Poirier netted one in the second to tie it up and Ty Bettac scored the winning goal in the third.

The win tied Drayton Valley and Grande Prairie for points temporarily, but the Storm added to their points last weekend. However, the Thunder sit with three games in hand.

They will look to make up some ground this weekend when they are on the road against the Whitecourt Wolverines Friday night before bringing it back to the Omplex on Saturday to face the Lloydminster Bobcats.

The game against the Oil Barons will be rescheduled.

The Drayton Valley Thunder welcomed the Grande Prairie Storm to the Omplex Jan. 22 for a mid-week game. The Thunder were able to take a victory in the match to temporarily tie the two teams for points in the division. The Storm pulled ahead of the Thunder in points again on this weekend, but the Thunder sit with three games in hand on Grande Prairie.

What to do, what to do

Dear Working Wife
What careers will be in the highest demand in the future? I'm trying to decide on a career and a school, but I want a job that pays well when I'm done. Do you have any advice?
Signed, Searching Student

Dear Searching
It's difficult to say for sure what the future holds, but the Government of Alberta did just release a report last week that you might find helpful.

The report shows a demand and supply that will be in the highest demand in the future. It's a career that will be in the highest demand in the future. It's a career that will be in the highest demand in the future. It's a career that will be in the highest demand in the future.

According to the latest outlook, 10,000 new jobs are expected to be added in Alberta over the coming decade, while only 11,000 new workers will join our workforce leaving us a shortage of approximately 96,000 workers in 2023.

This is an improvement from two years ago, when the shortage was estimated at 114,000, but as you can see there will be a lot of opportunities in Alberta's workforce over the next decade.

And these new job opportunities will not be limited to entry level, lower paying, or part-time positions either. Some of the biggest shortages are expected in the health care, construction, retail operations/maintenance and energy sectors.

The top 20 biggest projected shortages include:

- Dentists (15.2%)
- Oil & gas drilling services (11.2%)
- Physiotherapists (11.9%)

Held in Calgary for 2014, the tournament featured 175 teams in 18 different divisions. The Drayton Valley U14 Smokin' Guns showed extremely well during the competition and skated away with gold medal finish. Local U19, U12, and U10 teams also took part in the tournament and represented the area with pride.

Youngmen have to settle for tie

Promotion will be harder to achieve going forward

Courtney Whalen
Western Review

A tie against a tough opponent wasn't the result the DV Youngmen were hoping for last week in indoor soccer action.

With a game and a practice behind them since the addition of new players the team was feeling good about their chemistry and plan of attack heading into a match against Serbia. Despite missing some players due to injury and other commitments spokesman Brad Kelly said they felt ready to face the "dangerous" Serbia team.

After some initial battling back and forth the Youngmen took control in the first half, hitting a number of posts early on before scoring the first goal. The marker came courtesy of returned player James Neufeld. The Youngmen's last line of defence stepped up to the plate as well.

"Our keeper, Chad Martin, was on top form making some kick out saves that we assumed were going to be goals," said Kelly.

They found the net again to gain a 2-0 lead at the half. With a strong opponent in Serbia the team knew they would have to fight to maintain it.

"The guys were working extremely hard. Players would come to the bench panting and sweating," said Kelly. "We knew we couldn't keep up the pace, but at the same time it was what was winning us the game."

In the second half it was Serbia that came on strong. After weathering a flurry from the opponents the Youngmen started a counter attack of their own. Unfortunately, after a game where the majority of the penalties had gone against Serbia, the Youngmen started to find themselves on the wrong side of the penalty box. After killing a few penalties in a row the Youngmen were given a four minute major in the last two minutes of the game. Serbia took advantage of the powerplay to tie the game.

"We did our best to win the game. In the last seconds, but their keeper made a few big saves to keep the game tied," said Kelly. The Youngmen have the efforts of their own keeper to thank for keeping Serbia at bay for the majority of the game, stepping the efforts of Serbia's pool leading scorer several times.

The number of ties the team has racked up in the season has made a spot at promotion less likely for the team, although Kelly said it's still a possibility as they continue their indoor schedule in Edmonton District Soccer Association action.

WINTER FUN DAY

It might have been called a Winter Fun Day, but when students and staff at Aurora Elementary spent the afternoon outside on Jan. 22 it felt warm and sunny enough to be the beginning of spring. Taking advantage of the warm temperatures, older students organized and ran activities, while younger ones got to enjoy all the fun. Everything looked like such a good time that even the teachers had to get in on the action.

Former School Trustee Passes

FAUSAK
Alfred Leonard
Oct. 17 1923 - Dec. 10 2013

It is with deep sorrow that we announce the passing of our beloved husband, father, grandfather and great grandfather, Alfred Leonard Fausak, on December 10, 2013, at the age of 90 years. Fred was born in Neudorf, Germany, on October 17, 1923 to Olga and Robert Fausak and immigrated to Canada with his family in 1929. His family formed in the Park Court area and he was educated in the Park Court school. In 1941 at 18 years of age he took basic training in Canada. He joined the regular army (Calgary Highlanders) and the following year was sent overseas for active service in Holland, Belgium and Germany. He returned home in late 1945 and started working in the Park Court district. In 1947 he married Hazel Rasmussen and together they raised a family of four children. Fred was elected to the board of Fausak School Division, now Wilmetts Public in 1957 and he served on the board continuously for 27 years. During his tenure on the board, Evelyns Elementary and Grand Park High School were built. While serving on other local boards, Fred had influence in the building of Phoenix Haven and Pembina Village in Evansburg. At an 80 year old he volunteered daily in transforming the Sandstone Lodge into visitors' apartments, now known as Evansburg Lodge. He thrived on serving and improving his local community. Fred used the comparisons of working in a group to benefit the community and solving problems that arose. Unless most people tried to avoid attending meetings and attended Parents' Housing meetings, with a few months before his death he was a close, open member since 1947, serving in various leadership capacities over the years.

He maintained his self and sense of humor to the end and we miss him. Fred left to mourn his loss is his beloved wife of 66 years, Hazel, his children: Maureen (Bob), Marilyn (Marty), Valerie, John, Faye, Fern (Al), Floyd (Donna) and Gertie (Penny). Also mourning his loss is his grandfather, 19 great grandchildren, his granddaughter Hilda Fausak, sister-in-law Marion Fausak, and many dear friends. He was predeceased by his daughter Helen in 1973, brother Kurt and Edna, his parents, Robert and Olga, and mother and father-in-law Abel and Ida Eppendorf.

The funeral service was held at the Evansburg Legion hall on Sunday, January 6, 2014 with Pastor, Kenneth Peterson officiating. His cremated remains will be buried at a later date.

SHIRLEY ANN KMYTA (MORLEY)
October 6, 1967 - January 18, 2014
It is with sad hearts that we announce the passing of Shirley, Mother, Grandmother, Sister and Aunt.

Shirley was a very quiet, loving, caring soul who loved to bake and visit with family and friends. She loved to spend time playing with her grandkids who she loved very much. Shirley had a life full of illness and a long battle with health issues for many years, with all the suffering, medications and surgeries she has endured, we now say "Rest in Peace", no more suffering.

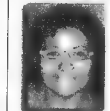

Shirley is survived by her loving family, son Darren (Dawn), Grandchildren, Kim, Cary, Patricia and Tracy, sisters Linda & Leanne, Joely, Rose & Jim Fothner, brothers Bill & Gail Morley and Kerry Morley and many nieces and nephews and great-nieces and nephews.

She is predeceased by her husband Bob Kmyta, her parents, Cheryl & Violet Morley, brother Brian Morley, sister Jean Kmyta, sisters Mike & Mary Kmyta and brother-in-law Duane Kmyta.

The family would like to extend their grateful appreciation to the staff at the University of Alberta Hospital.
